The meeting was held at Wolfe Hollow Brewery in Glenville for Rotary fellowship and to promote the End Polio Now program of both Rotary and the Gates Foundation. A choice 10 different micro brews and barbecued chicken sandwiches with chips and cole slaw were enjoyed. Both Rotarians and the general public were served. Wolfe Hollow contributed part of the evening's proceeds to ending polio.

The story goes that Jordan White and Pete Bednarek were sharing homebrews on their porches in West Glenville with neighbors when the idea to start a brewery took hold. A minister and a principal, both remaining committed to their original calling, decide to open a microbrewery with the support of family and friends. One year after opening the doors, Jordan and Pete welcomed Bill Kenneally into the partnership as an owner. Bill brought fresh eyes and expertise as an attorney and he had a vision for the next location of WHBC. Wolfe Hollow products are available at the brewery tasting room and at a large number of regional establishments.

Because of its social nature and open setting there were no announcements and no presentation.
